Center for Active Design Presents the Assembly: Civic Design Guidelines

Please join the Center for Active Design to discuss the Assembly: Civic Design Guidelines, a ground-breaking playbook for creating well-designed and well-maintained public spaces as a force for building trust and healing divisions in local communities.

The Assembly Guidelines capture the culmination of four years of research and collaboration—with input from 200+ studies, 50+ cities, and 70+ expert advisors—to provide evidence-based design and maintenance strategies for shaping places where people trust each other, have confidence in local institutions, and actively work together to address local priorities.

Joanna Frank, President & CEO of the Center for Active Design, will provide a high-level orientation to the Assembly Guidelines, highlighting original research methods and practical, evidence-based strategies.
